Where To Buy Book

I was so awfully pleased with the review of my book, "The Enemy At His Back," which Forrest Davis did for The Enquirer (October 7).

This has become the "book the book stores won't sell." Doubleday and Brentano's refuse to stock it, I am advised, but will order on request. The other day I asked for it at one of the large department stores here and was told bluntly they did not carry it and would not order it. It is about the same story all around the country.

So maybe you would advise your readers that "The Enemy At His Back" is a Free Enterprise book, distributed by the Bookmailer, Box 101, New York 16, N. Y.

For your information the "proprietor" of these two enterprises is Lyle Munson, a former CIA agent. He was called before the Warren IPR hearings in 1951 to testify about John P. Davies. The result was that Lyle was fired from CIA and Davies from the State Department.
